

FREIGHT BUREAU'S QUANDARY

Why Have the Railroads Shut Off Discrimination?

Filibustering Railroads.

The freight bureau committee of the Omaha board of trade met and devoted several hours to outlining a programme for the forthcoming meeting of the inter-state commerce commission which is to meet here on the 19th inst. Nothing more definite was transacted than was published in yesterday's issue.

The coming of this commission is not unattended with some anxiety because of the circumstances which have transpired since the commission was first notified of the cases against the railroads. This notification was filed some months ago in Washington, at which time the Iowa roads, it is claimed, were clearly discriminating against Omaha and in favor of Chicago. Since then, however, the whole status of the case has been changed. Everyone of the railroads mentioned in the complaint as discriminating in the manner indicated have, with the exception of the Chicago, Burlington & Quincy, changed front and practically admitted the strength of the freight bureau's position by establishing rates to points west of the Missouri on the basis of the sum of two local between Chicago to Omaha and Omaha to points beyond. So long as this state of affairs continues, the jobbers of this city as also the freight bureau of the board of trade which made the complaint will be satisfied. But the questions which trouble the board of trade will this state of affairs continue? Why did the roads change their rates? Was it because of the cut of rates on the warping roads between Chicago and Omaha, or because of the prospective visit of the inter-state commerce commission to hear the freight bureau's complaint?

There are just about as many answers as there are questions. The fact is, however, that the jobbers are in a quandary as to what to do, under the circumstances, when the commission shall arrive. They will not be able to substantiate the charge of discrimination alleged in the complaint, because in all except one road, the basis of the charge as above seen, has been removed. Should the commission come here and be forced to hold that the jobbers and the freight bureau had no case, it would be difficult to foresee what the damaging effects to the interest of the city would be. With some people the idea obtains that just as soon as the commission gets away from Omaha, the railroads will return to their old rates with the certainty that perhaps a couple of years at least would be required before the matter could again be brought up, when they might again resort to the same filibustering to evade the watchfulness and authority of both the freight bureau and the commission.

TENTING ON NEW CAMP GROUNDS.

Proposed Meeting of Garrisonians in the Department of the Platte.

On the 11th of last January a board of officers of the department of the Platte met in this city for the purpose of preparing a plan, with directions in detail for one month's field instruction of all the troops in the department. The board consisted of the following: Colonel Edward Hatch, Ninth cavalry; Colonel Henry A. Morrow, Twenty-first infantry; Major Guy V. Henry, Ninth cavalry, inspector of rifle practice; Captain Aaron S. Daggett, Second infantry; Captain P. Henry Ray, acting judge advocate; Second Lieutenant L. W. Kennon, Sixth infantry, aide-de-camp, recorder. On the 21st of the same month the board completed its work embracing among other things the following features: That the practice of marching is essential to the proper education of the troops but to obtain the greatest benefit, the exercise should be continuous and cover considerable distance; that the troops of the department be assembled in camps as follows: the garrisons of Fort Omaha, Nebraska, Robinson, Sidney, Laramie and Russell at some point on or near the Union Pacific; those of Fort Douglas, Bridger, Duchesne in Strawberry Valley, Utah; those of Fort McKinney and Washakie at some point near the Snake river; those of Missouri Valley road and that the garrison of Camp Pilot Butte be exempt from this meeting, not being available for duty of this character. The board also recommended that each camp shall tent during a period of thirty days, exclusive of the time required in marching to and from the same. If the central board recommended that the thirty days in field instructions consist in marching to and from such points as the department commander may suggest. It is also recommended that no officer be left in garrison unless excused by a surgeon on certificate of disability or by authority of the department commander, that the number of men to be left in garrison be determined by the department commander also, and further that all garrison prisoners accompany their respective commands.

The concluding recommendations refer to the allowance of tentage wagon transportation and food, which go to show that the plan is not one of the picnic order.

A RESOLUTE STAND.

The Bricklayers Will Not Accept the Offer of the Contractors.

The bricklayers' union held a largely attended meeting last night and a resolution was heartily endorsed to abide by the demand recently made by them of the contractors for $4.50 for eight hours work. They also appointed a committee to draft a reply to the resolutions adopted by the contractors and published in yesterday's BEE. The sentiment of the union was most pronounced against the contractors' offer and the contractors on the question of apprentices and was such that the management of the latter ought to be wholly in the hands of the bricklayers.

THE BRICK MANUFACTURERS.

The brick manufacturers held a meeting last evening at room 439, Paxton block, to discuss the subject of brick taxation in the present labor situation in the city. In the absence of Henry Livesey, the president, Martin Irwin presided. The meeting was a spirited one. The following scale of prices for their workmen has been decided upon for the coming season: Platters, $7.50 for 6,000 brick set and platted; mouliders, $7.50 for 6,000 rolled brick, $7.50 for 7,500 slip brick.

February 2, Mr. D. J. Collins notified Isaac O'Neill, president of the brick mouliders' and setters' union, of this scale, but the manufacturers say it has been utterly ignored by the union, and the manufacturers have notified them again that they would be given until the 12th of the present month to accept it, when that scale will be established any way.

It was decided to stand by the brick contractors in their fight with the bricklayers. Some of the bricklayers have threatened to ignore the contractors and do their own contracting; to leave the brick mouliders and setters alone, but the manufacturers have determined not to sell any bricks whatever to workmen so contracting.

One of the brick manufacturers said last evening: "The bricklayers have been spoiled by getting good wages. Two or three I know saved $100 a week, and the only way to do is to break their backbone now and bring them to terms."

POLITICAL MATTERS.

A meeting of the democratic state central committee will be held at the Paxton house next Friday evening, March 9, at 7:30 o'clock. The business to be transacted will be the calling of a state convention to elect delegates to the national democratic convention to be held in St. Louis on the 15th of next June. The chairman of the committee, James E. North, of Columbia, requests a full attendance of the members as other business of importance may come before the gathering.

REPUBLICAN DELEGATES.

The following members were elected to represent their respective wards in the convention of republican clubs of this state to be held in this city on the 15th instant:

Third ward—O. H. Rothacker, John Sahler and Julius S. Collier.

Fifth ward—B. E. Redman, John McDonald and Henry Bolin.

A number of republican clubs from all parts of the state have already elected delegates to the same convention, and it is now thought that the convention will be attended by a large number of the young republicans of the state.

In this city the meetings yet to be held to nominate delegates to the same convention are announced as follows:

Sixth ward—Friday night, Clark and Sanders streets.

Eighth ward—Saturday night, Cuming and Twenty-fourth streets.

REAR'S REASON.

Interesting Developments in the Case of the Missing Friend Merchant.

While there are some new and interesting developments in the case of W. E. Rea, the missing merchant from Friend, Neb., there are none that shed any additional light upon the mystery enshrouding his fate. His brother, George M. Rea, a well-to-do business man from Hackettstown, N. J., arrived in this city Saturday, and called upon the chief of police. They had a long conference, after which Mr. Rea left for Friend, telling the chief that after he had thoroughly investigated his brother's affairs there he would return to Omaha and report. His mind again. Yesterday the chief was in receipt of a long letter from Mrs. Rea, the wife of the missing man, in which she is inclined to think that he wandered away while laboring under some mental aberration, and that he has either fallen a victim to foul play, or done away with himself. She further stated that he had no financial troubles, that his store was worth fully $1,500, and $300 would cover all his indebtedness. She knew of absolutely nothing to keep him away an hour longer than was necessary to transact the business he had on hand. He left on the afternoon of January 31, intending to visit Lincoln and Omaha in an endeavor to sell his store. He called at Clarke's drug store in Lincoln and asked Mr. Mills, the manager, whether he knew of any party to whom he could likely sell the store. Mr. Mills, who thought Rea was excited and in a hurry, A. M. Odell, a restaurant keeper, thought Rea remained in Lincoln all night. He had no watch and Mrs. Rea had no idea how much money he had with him. He drew $20 out of the bank where he had $80 on deposit on his way to the depot. She recognized her husband's pocketbook—the one found on the river bank at the foot of Douglas street—from the description sent her. His domestic relations were harmonious and happy. They have been married eleven years, but had three children, all of whom are dead. The husband seemed to make a failure of everything he touched notwithstanding he was industrious, frugal and temperate. He thought he had experienced enough hard luck to upset his brain. After a minute description of her husband, his manner, clothes, and everything, Mrs. Rea's letter closed with the following pathetic paragraph: "Will he have a great deal of money since we were married, but everything has gone wrong with us excepting our great love for each other. Oh, yes, I almost forgot to tell you one thing. Will has said to me on several occasions, often think, Em, you'd be better off without me if you just had what little money I have—everything goes wrong with me." I always made him stop such talk, telling him life would be worth living without him. I sometimes do believe he has taken that crazy notion into his head and gone away. Our children all died with brain trouble.

Very respectfully yours,

EMMA B. L. REA.

In addition to the above the chief said Long, and Brown, and Scully, the men who were implicated in the finding and possession of the pocketbook, had all been seen and interviewed again, but their stories were only a repetition of the matter already published. One new point is, however, that Otto Schipper, a workman at Gray's lumber yard, told Detective Horgan, that he had found a couple of letters belonging to W. E. Rea, near the lumber pile where the pocketbook was found. He had destroyed them. While there is much in the evidence appearing to point to murder, the suicide theory has gained material plausibility and strength since the arrival of Mrs. Rea's letter. Detective Horgan still has the case in hand.

WORTHLESS INSTRUMENTS.

Unrecorded Documents in the Register of Deeds Office.

Persons who send instruments to be recorded together with the request that it be recorded immediately, and followed by the statement that the sender "will call around in a few days and settle the charges," should bear in mind that the papers so sent are never recorded or filed. They are held subject to the owner's call.

In many instances they are immediately returned to the senders and this rule is invariably carried out under Mr. McGeach's administration. He has been losing up unrecorded instruments in his possession and below is given a complete list of them. It should be remembered that these papers, not being filed or recorded, make them almost worthless, and in case of a lawsuit could not be used in evidence. Among the papers are the following warranty deeds: Union Pacific railway company to A. D. Butler, Consideration, $60, Date, June 20, 1887.

Archie Richmond to Sallie Richmond, Consideration, $1, Date, July 17, 1886.

Is Frank Ryan Insane?

A gentleman, known to the BEE reporter, arrived in town yesterday, from Springfield, Ill. He was accompanied with Ryan, the party charged with the murder of a woman. He claimed that it was always said by those who knew the young man, that he was not of sound mind, and his father before him had been a lunatic. He married a young lady in Springfield by the name of Green, and after a short wedded life tried to kill her and then himself. A court stay turned the bullet and saved the woman's life, and careful nursing by the father saved the life of the young man. A separation of the couple followed, and Frank, who was then a young man, drove a street car in Texas and playing cowboy on the plains. Returning to Springfield several years ago he became infatuated with and married a woman of the town, but they wedded life soon became one of turmoil, and he again left for the west. His share in the estate of the father amounts to a little over $100,000, a husband who was sent him in January. Springfield legal talent in connection with Judge Bradley will be engaged to defend him. This theory of insanity may be introduced in his defense.

THE WILL OF ELIZABETH N. DENNIS, deceased, was filed with Judge Shields yesterday, with her son, George L. Dennis, as executor.

Judge Shields yesterday gave a decision in a novel case in which a wife was pitted against her husband. Some time ago Mary Ann Vapor entered suit to recover $714.45 from her husband, J. C. Vapor, a Sixteenth street tailor, alleging that it was due her for making several pairs of pants and a number of coats and vests. It seems that the domestic relations of the pair have not been of the most loving character for some time back, and as money was not forthcoming from Mr. Vapor as liberally as it should be the wife resorted to the law to compel him to shell out. There being no objections raised to Mrs. Vapor's suit when it was called yesterday, the judge rendered a judgment for the full amount asked.
